Dear Friend,

Welcome to Delhi!

As the 63rd Annual National Conference of the Indian Psychiatric Society visits the heart and capital of India after a long wait of 19 years, we await your participation in an ANCIPS with a difference and one that promises to be not just another conference but a complete mental health event.

From its last halt at Delhi in 1992, the caravan of ANCIPS has traversed the length and breadth of our country and now the city of Delhi awaits with eager anticipation its arrival here from Sunday the 16th to Wednesday the 19th January 2011.

We invite you to join this ANCIPS Caravan and the stalwarts of psychiatry and mental health from across the country and the globe to share your professional, research, academic and clinical experience as well as professional and personal insights to further the state of knowledge and service delivery.

In keeping with the theme of the conference "Providing Mental Health Care to All" the various forums at the ANCIPS-2011 shall provide platforms for experts from diverse areas related to psychiatry and mental health to meet, interact, exchange and deliberate in a truly multi-disciplinary milieu. In addition to psychiatrists and other mental health professionals also attending would be representatives of government and international bodies; those from policy, legal and regulatory authorities; NGOs and self-help groups, prominent pharmaceutical and healthcare providers and members of the general public. The ANCIPS-2011 would therefore provide the impetus for evolving policies, strategies and operational plans that can make delivery of mental health care for all a reality.

We invite you to be a part of this movement. Moreover, the ANCIPS-2011 shall provide intellectual space for all: from the student to the expert, the lab based researcher to the caring clinician, the avid academician to the community care professional, from the biological to the social psychiatrist, the pure pharmacotherapist to the practicing psychotherapist; as well as for the deeply committed audience who attend to learn and apply this information and knowledge, and without whom all shall but exist in vacuum.

With ANCIPS-2011, the ANCIPS Goes Green. We are committed to reducing our carbon footprint, to use environment friendly materials and utilise available information technology to the best possible in order to make the ANCIPS as environment friendly as possible.

With ANCIPS-2011, the ANCIPS is slated to turn into a National Mental Health Event. While being a complete high-end conference it aims to set new benchmarks. Attracting to its scientific core, it shall yet provide adequate opportunities for fellowship, networking, and relaxation. A scientific fiesta and fellowship feast with exclusive cultural, local and accompanying person programs. Various pre-conference events for mental health care users and general public shall roll out much earlier. These include awareness lectures and activities for schools, corporate bodies, NGOs and other groups, regular features in print and electronic media and a retrospect of Indian Cinema with mental health themes. At the conference there shall be an excellent and sophisticated trade promotion exhibition and thereafter post conference advocacy. We invite you to volunteer to participate in any of these activities.

The beautiful city of Delhi with its enhanced infrastructure following the Commonwealth Games and its crisp champagne like winter awaits you with a warm welcome.

Swaagatam!

Welcome to Delhi - The Venue of ANCIPS 2011

Delhi, the centre stage of Indian politics represents the best in the country. It is a city where empires rose and fell before the dawn of history; where citadels of emperors appeared and disappeared; a city of mysterious eternity whose old ruins proclaim a majestic and imperial past and whose present pulsates vibrantly with the ever flowing life of India.

The eternal Yamuna bears witness to the glorious and tumultuous 3,000 year of its story. A story, which begins in 1400 BC with Indraprastha of the Pandavas transformed from a barren gift given by the Kauravas, into an idyllic haven impregnated with almost all major events of Indian history. Those who are interested in history will know that Delhi encompasses all the various kings and emperors who fixed their royal citadels here-- Indraprastha, Lal Kot, Quila Rai Pithora, Siri, Jahanpanah, Tughlakabad, Ferozabad, Dinpanah, Delhi Sher Shahi or Shahjahanabad. Combined and integrated into one, these 'new cities' have always been called Delhi and howsoever many names it may have acquired, Delhi has always been intrinsically identified with power and imperial sway. There have been at least eight cities around modern Delhi, and the old saying that "whoever founds a new city at Delhi will lose it" has come true every time -- most recently for the British who founded New Delhi in 1911.

the city but it regained its lost glory each time.

While the old city reflects the glorious Mughal-period, New Delhi gives imperial aroma of British rule. Architecture of Slave-dynasty's Qutub Minar, Indo-Persian art reflected in Jama Masjid, exuding amalgamations of North and South Indian art styles in Chhatarpur temple Complex, and architectural designs of Gurdwaras like Sheesh Ganj and Bangla Sahib

Delhi was the focal point for the first war of independence in 1857

The historic Purana Qila standing witness to Delhi's rejuvenation, periods of anarchy, and the rise and fall of empires, brings alive history of the capital. Gorgeous palaces within the Red Fort tell the story of lavish life-style of Mughal emperors. Delhi is witness to the death of many empires and resisted bloody attempts to eliminate her. Taimur Lang's brutalities, Nadir Shah's plunder and Abdali's massacre, all had tried to demolish the and Churches such as St. Thomas and St. Columbus speak volumes of Delhi's landscape. The Bahai Lotus temple representing the Bahai way of worship is a splendid architectural design. The Tibetan monastery near Kashmere Gate represents the Tibetan culture in Delhi. Delhi comes as a merger of the modern lifestyles with the old traditions. While there is the sound of Qawwalis of Nizamuddin Shrine, Gurbanis of Bangla Sahib and Aartis of Birla Mandir, one can hear the loud and blaring music of pubs and discotheques at and it became a thorn in the eyes of the British. As the English shifted their capital from Calcutta to Delhi, all the activities during the freedom struggle were directed towards Delhi. Thus, Delhi also bears the marks of the freedom struggle. The ultimate goal of the Azad Hind Fauj was to capture Delhi; the slogan Dilli Chalo given by Netaji is still being used by many.

The forthcoming Common Wealth Games will be an event of great international importance for which entire Delhi is being given a new look. Immediately after that Old Delhi is a pure gastronomic pleasure where some of the best Indian delicacies were conceived. Here time stands still in the ancient monuments but flies once you hit the shopping trail. New Delhi, on the other hand, is a paradigm shift from the chaotic semblance of Old Delhi, a graceful embodiment of British charm reflecting Victorian-style architectural grandeur of India Gate with an ambience of Today, Delhi has emerged as a metropolis with a cosmopolitan outlook and seat of governance. Urbanisation has made rapid strides but the classical charm of the city has not lost its allure. Commercialisation runs deep but Delhi has also retained its place as the art and cultural center of India. The city's repertoire of tourism delights has placed Delhi as one of the best travel destinations. Delhi's educational horizon has spread globally, spearheaded by its highly respected educational entities: IIT-Delhi, Delhi University, Jawaharlal Nehru University, Jamia Milia Islamia, AIIMS and of late it has also become a global hotspot for fashion, IT, sports, business and services industry. Every important international event comes ANCIPS 2011, which is expected to be a unique and memorable experience in all respects. Delhi eagerly awaits your participation.
